2. Interesting news

ECDC and the Flu Pandemic

The European and Europe-related evaluations are starting to stack up. ECDC keeps a list of the national and international ones at:

http://www.ecdc.europa.eu/en/healthtopics/H1N1/pandemic_2009_evaluations/Pages/pandemic_2009_evaluations.aspx

If you have national or international ones on-line do send me details and copy to influenza@ecdc.europa.eu

ECDC is interested in not just official evaluations but also niche evaluations like the UK ones on immunisation of health care workers and clinical care in any European language.

Summaries of the epidemiology are also starting to come out and we are interested in those as well.

European Medicines Agency Consultation

ENCePP Guide on Methodological Standards in Pharmacoepidemiology

We would like to draw your attention to an European Medicines Agency (EMA) public consultation on the draft Guide on Methodological Standards in Pharmacoepidemiology. This guideline has been developed by ENCePP, a collaboration between the EMA and the pharmacoepidemiology research community that aims to strengthen the post-authorisation monitoring of medicines by facilitating the conduct of multi-centre, independent and scientifically robust studies focusing on safety and the balance of benefits and risks. In line with this, the Guide seeks to assure high quality pharmacoepidemiological "ENCePP Studies" http://www.encepp.eu/encepp_studies/index.html to fuel learned regulatory decision making and to stimulate innovation that benefits patients and public health at large.

The document has been developed over a period of several months by a dedicated ENCePP Working Group consisting of experts in pharmacoepidemiological and pharmacovigilance research and has been peer reviewed and adopted by the ENCePP Steering Group. In acknowledgement of the diverse nature and levels of expertise among present researchers in Europe, ENCePP aims at encouraging participation across the spectrum of researchers and considers the current overview document appropriate to serve both experienced and relatively new researchers in pharmacoepidemiology.

Your comments and any additional references that could enrich this Guide would be most welcome.

The draft guide is available for consultation on the following webpage:

Please note that the deadline for comments is 3rd January 2011.

3. EUPHA member of the month – Norwegian Society of Public Health

Website: <http://www.folkehelseforeningen.no/>

The Norwegian Society of Public Health (NFSH) is an interdisciplinary organisation promoting public health through research, training, policy development and practice. We focus on lifestyle, healthy environment and alleviating inequalities in health.

NFSH is a member of the European Public Health Association (EUPHA) and the World Federation of Public Health Associations (WFPHA).

The Norwegian Society of Public Health was founded in 1998 and has over 200 members who receive the European Journal of Public Health four times a year and the Scandinavian Journal of Public Health six times a year. Each year we organise a seminar that focuses on current issues concerning public health. In 2004 EUPHA entrusted us with organising its 12th European conference in Oslo in October 2004.

GOALS

NFSH shall be a meeting place and a bridge between researchers, practitioners, and policymakers.

NFSH shall provide increased understanding of local, national and global public health perspective in research, teaching and management.

NFSH shall be, in cooperation with other organizations and institutions, be a driving force for putting public health on the political agenda.

SURVEILLANCE REPORT

Annual Epidemiological Report on communicable diseases in Europe - 2010

This edition of the Annual Epidemiological Report on Communicable Diseases in Europe provides a comprehensive summary of surveillance data for 2008.

Despite a reduction in the incidence of some of the diseases under surveillance, the data presented show that several problems remain. Among those of the most concern are antimicrobial resistance and healthcare-associated infections; sexually transmitted infections like HIV and chlamydia; and respiratory tract infections. The priorities for communicable disease prevention and control have therefore not changed substantially over recent years.

Possible readership: Public health officials, health professionals, policy makers, surveillance experts

SURVEILLANCE REPORT

HIV/AIDS surveillance in Europe 2009

The rate of newly diagnosed cases of HIV infection in the EU and EEA has remained relatively stable since 2004, although with evidence of continuing transmission in Europe, HIV continues to be a major public health concern for the region. This report, prepared jointly with the WHO Regional Office for Europe, presents data on HIV and AIDS for the whole European Region, including the EU and EEA countries. Analyses are provided for the EU and EEA region, and also by geographical area of the WHO European Region.

Possible readership: health officials, policymakers, people engaged in HIV/AIDS prevention.

SURVEILLANCE REPORT

Antimicrobial resistance surveillance in Europe 2009. Annual report of the European Antimicrobial Resistance Surveillance Network (EARS-Net)

This is the first annual report of the European Antimicrobial Resistance Surveillance Network (EARS-Net) after the transition of the European Antimicrobial Resistance Surveillance System (EARSS) to ECDC on 1 January 2010. EARS-Net is a European-wide network of national surveillance systems, providing European reference data on antimicrobial resistance for public health purposes. The network is coordinated and funded by ECDC. It conducts surveillance of antimicrobial susceptibility in seven major invasive pathogens of public health importance: Streptococcus pneumoniae, Staphylococcus aureus, Escherichia coli, Enterococcus faecalis, Enterococcus faecium, Klebsiella pneumoniae and Pseudomonas aeruginosa. This report presents antimicrobial resistance data reported to EARS-Net by 28 countries in 2009 and results of trend analyses, including EARSS data from previous years.

Possible readership: public health officials, antibiotic/antimicrobial resistance experts, policy makers, health professionals

ECDC GUIDANCE

HIV testing: increasing uptake and effectiveness in the European Union

As the number of people infected with HIV continues to rise, there is increasing evidence that early treatment reduces morbidity and mortality. However, many people remain undiagnosed. This Guidance provides core principles for the development and implementation of national HIV testing strategies. This report is also provided in a shorter 'In brief' format and is accompanied by a Technical report (see below) which provides the evidence base for the guidance.

Possible target readership: public health officials, policymakers, people engaged in HIV/AIDS prevention.

TECHNICAL REPORT

HIV testing: Increasing uptake and effectiveness in the European Union. Evidence synthesis for Guidance on HIV testing

This review of scientific literature identified evidence for a number of strategies to overcome barriers to HIV testing. It highlights the need to expand testing across Europe and the necessity to ensure that HIV programmes are vigorously monitored and evaluated, both locally and nationally.

This report accompanies the ECDC Guidance on HIV testing: increasing uptake and effectiveness in the European Union (see above) which is also available in a shorter 'In brief' format.

Possible target readership: public health officials, policymakers, people engaged in HIV/AIDS prevention.

External quality assurance scheme for Salmonella typing

This report describes the first external quality assurance (EQA) scheme on typing of Salmonella subspecies, organised for the laboratories of the Food- and Waterborne Diseases and Zoonoses network by ECDC. In the EQA scheme, three procedures for typing of Salmonella subspecies were tested: serotyping, phage typing and antimicrobial susceptibility testing (AST). The main objective of this EQA scheme was to evaluate whether typing of Salmonella strains by different laboratories within and outside the European Union (EU) and the European Economic Area (EEA) was carried out uniformly and whether comparable results were obtained.

Possible readership: Laboratory technicians, health professionals.

Progressing towards TB elimination

Two years after the launch of the Framework action plan to fight tuberculosis in the European Union, a follow-up report has been prepared. It looks at the current European situation regarding TB control, putting it into the global context, and goes on to present a monitoring framework that can be used to assess Europe's progress towards the elimination of TB. WHO guidelines for indoor air quality: selected pollutants

This book presents WHO guidelines for the protection of public health from a number of chemicals commonly present in indoor air. For each substance, the chapter covers a general description, the sources and pathways of exposure, the indoor-outdoor relationship, kinetics and metabolism, the health effects, a health risk evaluation, the guidelines, a summary box and references.

These guidelines are targeted at public health professionals involved in preventing the health risks of environmental exposures, as well as at specialists and authorities involved in the design and use of buildings, indoor materials and products. They provide a scientific basis for legally enforceable standards.

Empower women – Combating tobacco industry marketing in the WHO European Region

Over the last two decades, smoking by women and girls in many parts of the WHO European Region has increased, largely owing to skilful and successful marketing by the tobacco industry. It has tailored campaigns to target women and girls, and the tobacco control community needs to do the same. The WHO Framework Convention on Tobacco Control (FCTC) expresses alarm at the increase in women and girls' use of tobacco. This monograph uses examples of action taken in the Region to provide countries with a guide and ideas about what action could and should be taken, in the context of the WHO FCTC's articles and guidelines.
